

Durbin your trusted partner for helping charities & reducing disposal costs

Reducing disposal costs

The disposal of excess clinical trial supplies, whether it be comparators or ancillaries, can be expensive when the cost of transportation and destruction is taken into account.

Many companies view this as a waste, and would like to donate the excess supplies to worthy charities or developing countries but struggle with the procedures.

Charity donation

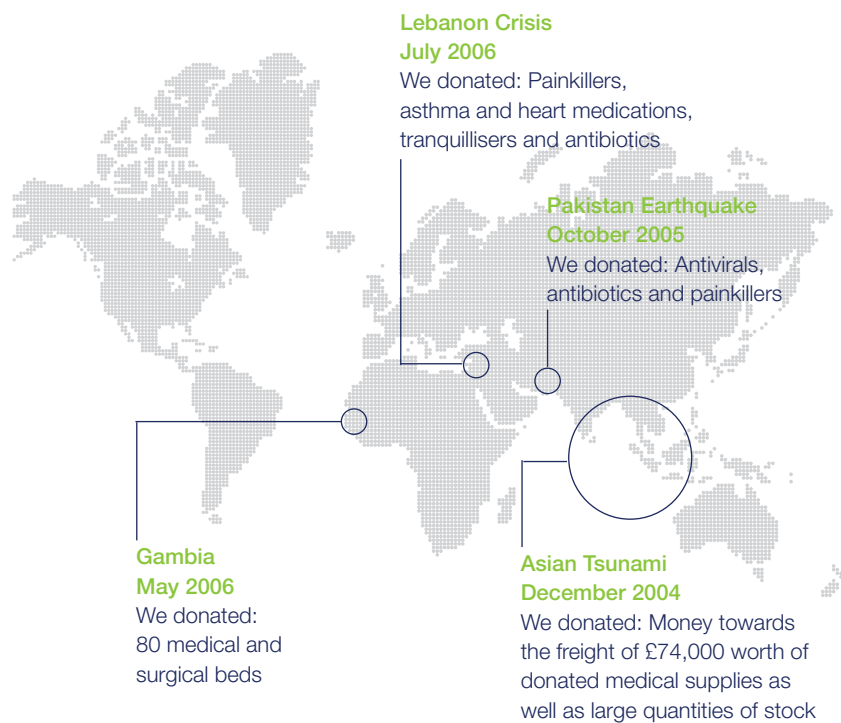

Durbin has wide experience in the donation of excess stock from pharmaceutical companies to the developing world. We combine our expertise in clinical trial supply with being one of the leading suppliers to the charity sector. In the last five years US $35 million of donated pharmaceuticals and equipment have been distributed by Durbin across the world.

Virgin Atlantic requested urgent medical supplies for the first flight to Basra at the end of the Gulf War. Durbin PLC responded immediately with wheelchairs, oxygen masks, crutches and a range of cancer drugs.

Durbin can:

- Identify suitable charities to donate to
- Advise on Regulatory issues; Legal matters; Administrative procedures
- Liaise with comparator innovators

Charities and non-governmental organisations we have worked with include:

- UNICEF
- World Health Organisation
- Red Cross
- Red Crescent
- Médecins Sans Frontières
- Save The Children
